INTRODUCTION

The Drerup family, according to records available, was established in the United States in the 1830's. The John Bernard Drerup family came from Germany to Glandorf, Ohio in 1835. His brother, Bernard Anton Drerup and wife, joined him in 1837. An artistic tree of the Drerup family was printed in Germany by William Drerup Borghorst in 1871. In 1911 a "Geschichte und Genealogie der Familie Drerup" was published by Dr. Englebert Drerup of Germany. Both of these documents included the American branches of the Drerup family.

This 1983 publication records the growth of the Drerup family in America since the 1830's. It has been in preparation for many years. Dr. Alphonse Drerup, Alexandria, Louisiana, began gathering family data in the 1960's. He continued to collect genealogical information for more than ten years. In the early 1970's Brother John Drerup of the University of Dayton became interested in the project and Dr. Drerup provided him with the material that had been collected. Brother John worked diligently on this genealogy until his death in 1981. For several years before his death, he and I had been making plans to print this publication. In 1981 all of the material in Brother John Drerup's possession was made available to me by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Drerup of Dayton, Ohio. The task of gathering additional family data and preparing it for publication was continued for two more years.

Hundreds of our Drerup relatives have assisted in the task of gathering data for this publication. Their cooperation has made this book possible, and to all of them we extend our sincere thanks. It is impossible to name all of these people, for I might omit the names of some contributors. I must, however, thank my wife Ettie, who gave me continual encouragement and assistance. She supported me in the decision to reprint the 1911 "Geschichte und Genealogie" and also the 1870 Drerup Family Tree. The "Geschichte und Genealogie" reprint includes some English translations. The circulation of these reprints stimulated the interest of many of the Drerup relatives in the development of this genealogy. Thanks must also be extended to our son, Gerald A. Rieman, who through the modern technology of his computer organization, alphabetized and printed over 7500 names listed in the index.

This genealogy cannot be considered as finished. It does not include all the descendants of the two Drerup brothers who came to America. Contact with some members of the family has been lost. Other family members were contacted several times, but did not provide information. Some contacts were impossible, because we did not know where to locate people.

In addition to the two brothers, John B. Drerup and Anton Drerup who came to America in the 1830's, several other Drerups who migrated to America must be recognized. Joseph Drerup-Jeiler, a nephew of the above pioneers, came to Glandorf, Ohio about 1870. He and his wife had no descendants. Two brothers, Karl Drerup and Paul Drerup, great grandsons of Johann H. Melchior Drerup came to the United States since 1920. Karl settled in New York in 1937 and later in Campton, New Hampshire. His wife Gertrude died in 1977. Their son, Oliver, lived in Canada but later joined his father in New Hampshire. Paul Drerup, now deceased, came to the United States in 1921. His widow, now, Mrs. Esther Davis, and their two daughters live in California. Other Drerup immigrants may have come to America, but we are not aware of any other families at the present time.

It is suggested that you add any necessary data for your family. In this manner, information will be readily available should any particular family members seek to develop their own family history more extensively.

It is our hope that the genealogical record and the family history in this publication will provide each of the Drerup descendants with a pride in the Drerup heritage and apprise them of the manner in which this family, which had humble origins in Germany, has taken root and spread throughout the United States.

HISTORY OF DRERUP FAMILY

The "Geschichte und Genealogie der Familie Drerup" was printed in 1911 by Dr. Englebert Drerup of the University of Munich. This publication presents the early history of the Drerup Family and refers to public records using the Drerup name as early as 1591. Other public documents indicate the Drerup rural homestead in the Munster area of Westphalia was probably cultivated by the Drerup (Drevedorpe) family as early as 1336. This farm lies in the municipality of Norwalde and the district of Westerrode about a half-hour walking distance east of the village. The highway to Greven passes near the south side of the farm.

The Drerup home from time immemorial belonged to the cathedral city of Munster and was one of a group of approximately twelve farms under Count Korff-Schmising or his successor, who was Treasurer of the main house and collected the taxes for the Cheese Ministry (Kaseamte). The family ties of these peasants were tightly joined and restricted within narrow limits because these farmhouses belonged to a single spiritual or temporal lord with the tenants bound to the soil as serfs.

The Saxon peasants had several privileges in relation to their landlord, however, among which the right to continue occupying a plot of ground was foremost. No one could expel them from the land if they did not ruin it through negligence. Neither could they be transferred against their will to another piece of land. They also had a considerable right of succession. A special council, called "Hofsprache," on which the tenants of the more important farms had a seat and a voice, took care of many of the internal affairs of the manor, including conferring of tenancy and right to succession. New tenants were placed under oath to preserve the plot, not to sell or set aside any portion of it, and to improve the holding as much as possible. There were also certain constraints associated with tenancy. Being bound to the soil was the most significant. Tenants could gain personal freedom only by the payment of a sum of money (manumission). A tenant was obliged to pay personal tribute nearly every year, generally to the manor court, for the privilege of tenancy. "Death Dues" were to be paid if a person inherited a plot.

The privilege of the Manor Court, which was abrogated in 1803 along with the system of regular taxation, was attended by ever mounting tax burdens. The obligatory assemblies afforded the opportunity to wring from the associates the acceptance of increased tax levies, while those not in such associations could only with difficulty be pressured into an increase of their payments. These constantly recurring tax burdens, however, still did not exhaust the burden of tenant farmers. By a special edict any yield of timber that grew on the land was reserved to the overlord. An interesting record dealing with this subject and concerning the Drerup homestead is afforded by a document of the Cheese Ministry, according to which, about the year 1700, the overseer at Norwalde, Frederick Frerichs, "consigns to our gracious lord Vicedominus von Schmisinck the fallen trees and separated branches that were blown down on the land of Zeller Drerup of Norwold."

A furious storm had wrecked havoc in the woods on that property, had uprooted huge trees and torn away heavy branches. The salvaged timber included "seven trees with trunks 12, 20, 20, 28, 33, 20, and 16 feet long, usable for lumber, and 43½ cartloads of firewood. There is also a report of severe damage on a neighboring home. It is believed that this storm also damaged the Drerup homestead, and made it necessary to rebuild the house. A renovation of the house was begun and was brought to completion by June 22, 1707. This is attested to by an inscription carved in a beam over the large timbered door of the Drerup home. The original home still stands in NORWALDE and is under monumental protection. Any changes thereon require the approval of the Commission on Antiquities.

Among the extraordinary liabilities arising from the state of dependence that existed we should mention particularly the purchase of personal freedom. Every peasant had to pay to be released from the soil or had to repay in the event that he married into another tenant farm. The inventory records of the Cheese Ministry used in the assessment and administration of the taxes show an ever increasing listing of personal property. The landlord-tenant relationship in Westphalia remained unchanged, however, until the time of Napoleon. He overthrew the system of bondage and established even the peasants as free people. However, the tax system of the now independent farms was not abolished.

By an imperial decree of 1803 a portion of the Wolbedk jurisdiction to which Norwalde belonged was transferred from the control of the Diocese of Munster to that of Duke Looz-Corswaren, governor of Rheina-Wolbeck. By this transaction he acquired the ownership of the Drerup farm and with it all the ownership rights that had been vested in the jurisdiction of Munster. By virtue of this same legislation tenants were temporarily absolved from "DIENSTGELD" (payment in lieu of service) and were enabled to discharge all outstanding debts by payment of one-fifth of the total as indemnity. But after the French were defeated and driven out, the former laws pertaining to property were reinstated at the request of Duke Looz-Corswaren and new rates for property taxes and DIENSTGELD were established.

Count Napoleon de Lannoy de Clairvaux su Lettich succeeded Duke Looz-Corswaren as governor of Rheina-Wolbeck. Through his benevolence a complete release was drawn up on July 8, 1842 in the court at Horstman, in virtue of which all claims upon the Drerup homestead were entirely and forever dismissed. The settlement came to 327 Rx., 11 sch., 5 d. Thus in the middle of the nineteenth century the Drerup holding was liberated from the bondage in which it had stood for more than five hundred years.

Although some public documents record variations of the Drerup name as early as 1336, the oldest Drerup birth records to survive are dated around 1600.

Following is an outline of the ancestors of John Bernard Drerup and Bernard Anton Drerup as listed in the "Geschichte und Genealogie der Familie Drerup" printed in Germany in 1911. The letters and numbers used are those used by Dr. Englebert Drerup in the 1911 publication.

The record shows that Johann Bernard Drerup and Bernard Anton Drerup came to Glandorf, Ohio in 1835 and 1837, respectively. There may have been several reasons for this migration. The levying of a general increase of taxes during the late 18th century caused monetary distress and dissatisfaction among the lower classes. The Drerup tenants could gain personal freedom only by the payment of a sum of money (Manumission). Military service also appeared to be an obligation of some of the young men at that time.

There were also the attractions of the New World across the Atlantic. A group of about eight men from Glandorf, Germany, under the leadership of Fr. William Horstman, had established a settlement in Ohio in 1834 and named it Glandorf. This small German Catholic community in the swamp-land of Northwest Ohio offered a promise of opportunity. Johann Bernard Drerup, together with his wife, Elizabeth, and their infant son, departed Germany in 1835. The "Geschichte" records the departure of Bernard Anton Drerup and his wife, Elizabeth, to America on their wedding day in 1837.

Although research efforts were made, we have no record of the names of the ships on which these two brothers sailed. The method of travel and the route followed as they made their way to their chosen land in Ohio are also unknown. The voyage and subsequent journey must have been exhausting. There also was no "paradise" awaiting them as they established their home in Glandorf, Ohio.

The 1896 History of Allen and Putnam County states that John B. Drerup settled on 160 acres one-half mile south of Glandorf and erected a round-log cabin in the woods. Here the family lived for about fifteen years while the farm was being cleared. It was then that a hewed log house was built. In the 1915 History of Putnam County it is recorded that there were no roads and the Indians were still in possession of some of the land in the area when our ancestors settled there. Food was scarce and limited in variety until land was cleared and crops raised. People sometimes ate leaves from trees cooked like greens. At times they walked to Findlay, Ohio, following an Indian Trail, carrying a sack of corn to have it ground.

John B. Drerup had only two children with descendants, John H. Drerup and Valentine Drerup Uphaus, who remained in the Glandorf community. All of the children of John H. Drerup originally established themselves as farmers in Putnam County. However, John Bernard took up lumbering near Portageville, Missouri about 1910. Henry J. and Frank H. went to Nazareth and Dimmitt, Texas in 1908 and engaged in ranching and farming.

Bernard Anton Drerup is believed to have settled north of Glandorf. He remained in the Glandorf area until 1863 when he moved to Avilla (Kendallville), Indiana. He had three sons and three daughters with descendants. Anton Jr. remained at Glandorf, but some of his children went to Dayton, Ohio. Gerhard and Bernard went to Avilla with their father. However, Bernard returned to Glandorf as a cabinet maker and raised his family there. Marianne Drerup Meyer (Theodore) had a family of 13 children who settled in Putnam County. Maria Drerup Meyer (Henry) had ten children who established homes throughout Putnam County, Delphos, and also in Michigan. The Catharina Drerup Blust descendants lived in the Hamler and Tiffin, Ohio area.

The 1911 "Geschichte" states that most of our early American ancestors were farmers. Many second and third generation Drerup descendants, however, began to enter other trades and professions. Their successors today can be found in almost any occupation imaginable. Only a small percentage continue to be tillers of the soil.

It is evident that the Drerup family roots began to spread rapidly throughout the United States. We have recorded the addresses of the present-day descendants which were available to us. A complete listing of residences, however, would probably find a Drerup or a Drerup descendant in almost every state.

It is almost 150 years since these two Drerup brothers, supported by the love and courage of their young wives, set sail to a new land. They were not able to return to their families in Germany. They had to be content to send a letter to their relatives telling of their successes and misfortunes. A reply would probably take many months. It was their courage, their industry, and their perserverance which established the Drerup family in America and helped it to spread throughout the United States. May we be forever grateful to them.
